JOINT CONFERENCES FOR PRESS AND NEWSCASTERS? ROCKEFELLER TOUR FOCUSSES ATTENTION ON ISSUE

Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller's penchant for pinpointing public problems was spotlighted this week when newscasters in Los Angeles walked out in protest against a separate press conference.

The Governor had inaugurated a policy of conducting separate sessions for newscasters and reporters when he took office in Albany last January.

The walkout was not followed by similar protests at later stops on the Governor's tour. In conducting separate interviews, he gave newscasters priority in San Francisco and Boise and met the press first in Seattle.

A survey for the OPC Bulletin revealed

A. O. Sulzberger Heads Fund Drive Press Unit

Arthur Ochs Sulzberger of the N.Y.
Times has been named chairman of a newspaper committee organized this week to seek contributions among New York City newspaper members in the OPC
World Center fund-raising campaign.

Mr. Sulzberger and seven committee members met this week to map out a men in New York City who are OPC members.

sharp differences among organization spokesmen and individuals in different media, as well as some efforts to come to terms.

The Governor recently met informally with radio and television spokesmen to discuss the problem, it was revealed.

Thomas D. Zumbo, UPI staffer and president of the New York Newspaper Reporters Association, reported informal attempts to work out a formula with Gabe Pressman, president of the Radio-Newsreel-Television Working Press Association, representing 200 East Coast newscasters.

Meanwhile, comments to the Bulletin ranged from a broadcaster's linking "separate but equal" conferences to Supreme Court edicts on integration, to a newsman's retort that "separate rest rooms have not invalidated equal rights for women."

In a telegram to Governor Rockefeller, Pressman summarized the views of broadcast reporters:

"We support the California radio-TV newsmen in their resistance to arbitrary ground rules for your news conferences.
While we customarily have separate conferences in New York, we do so only by mutual agreement. We don't think you have the right to set the rules unilaterally.
We hope you will work out an agreement with our West Coast colleagues in a spirit of mutual good will and understanding."

Zumbo explained his support of sep-

"DATELINE: FAR EAST"

A seven-day working tour of seven countries, entitled "Dateline: Far East", has been projected early in 1960, William Foster, Outside Events chairman, announced this week.

The plan for a sponsored tour, which has received tentative approval of the Board of Governors, embraces a party of 30, with a cost approximating $1,850.

Plans permit expansion of the party to a group as large as 60 if interest warrants,
Mr. Foster declared.

Tentative schedules call for departure from New York on January 20, and an itinerary embracing Japan, Korea, Formo-

"Who's Hot-Tempered?"

Times' Rosenthal Ousted By Poles for "Probing"

"Always moody and irascible," wrote thoughtful N.Y. Times man A.M. Rosenthal on November 6. "M. Gomulka is more withdrawn these days and seems hotter-tempered than ever.

"He is said to have a feeling of having been let down — by intellectuals and economists he never had any sympathy for anyway, by workers he accuses of squeezing overtime out of a normal day's work, by suspicious peasants who turn their backs on the Government's plans, orders and pleas.

"Mr. Gomulka has made it clear that he thinks there has been too much liberalism among the intellectuals, too much interest in Western ways.

"More than ever since 1956 there are barriers between M.

Gomulka and some of the men who are important in his party. M. Gomulka runs the Polish Communist ship but it is not a happy one."

ROSENTHAL

No Misrepresentations

On November 12 the Polish Foreign Ministry gave Rosenthal a lesson in Gomulka irascibility. It kicked him out.

"The question of falseness or otherwise does not enter into the question," he was told. "You have written very deeply and in detail about the internal situation, party matters, and leadership matters, and the Polish Government cannot tolerate such reporting."

John F. Day, OPC Freedom of the Press committee chairman, declared this week:

"We are going to protest to the Polish government the expulsion of Mr. Rosenthal. I am amazed that a reporter should be kicked out of a country for reporting in depth. They didn't even charge that he had erred or misrepresented the facts."

Ambassador Jacob D. Beam and the State Department protested, in Warsaw and in Washington.

Escape To Freedom

For twenty-five years the International Rescue Committee has helped refugees from political oppression escape to freedom. More than 20,000 victims of tyranny from Berlin to Saigon to Budapest have been resettled in freedom through the voluntary assistance of the IRC. Special emphasis has been given to political, professional and student leaders who could serve as a nucleus for a democratic system upon defeat of the totalitarian regime.

This week the IRC honors a great American who, during his lifetime, gave inspired leadership to the IRC and to the Free World — Maj. Gen. William "Wild Bill" Donovan.

Helping to mobilize the support of the American people for the IRC during most of the past twenty-five years is arate conferences with this statement to The Bulletin:

"TV personnel create a chaotic problem with the clutter of equipment, cables, lights, shouted directions to the subject to face one direction or another. The problem is mechanical. It should be observed that each TV network or station requires four or five people at a press conference - cameraman, lighting man, microphone engineer, interviewer, messengers - creating a problem of crowding.

"In addition, the reporting approach is different. A press interview is most effective when reporters fire questions, building on the impact of previous questions to get some depth or news value. Radio and television interviews want a brief answer to highlight an issue, sometimes hold up the conference to get a good sentence repeated for recording or camera. This can disrupt the chain of thought, and prevent the subject from going into a clarifying discussion."

Citing the provision for separate rooms for TV and newspaper interviews at Idlewild Airport, Zumbo proposed a formula for fair conduct of separate interviews.

"The problem of deadline could with justice determine whether a separate TV interview comes before or after the press interview. A morning conference, timed to make afternoon papers while broadcasters are shooting for dinner hour, could give the press first chance. An afternoon meeting, with night broadcasts preceding morning paper deadlines, could give TV an earlier session.

"In either case, broadcast reporters could join the press to ask questions and

John F. Day, CBS news director, explained the broadcaster's viewpoint:

"We think it becomes a 'stagey, set-up deal' when separate press conferences are held and the answers for radio-television are 'rehearsed', so to speak, at a prior session for written media only. I do not see a valid reason for holding separate meetings."

Speaking as an individual, Frank S. Adams, city editor of the N.Y. Times, observed:

"I admire Mr. Rockefeller for having the guts to take what seems to me to be a highly desirable step forward. The combined press conference has been a nightmare to all parties concerned. None of the competing media can do themselves justice."

A Rockefeller spokesman noted that, to his knowledge, the Governor's Albany practice was not a matter of "casting out" broadcast reporters, but of inviting them to Executive Mansion press conferences for the first time.

"Equipment is set up in another part of the Executive Chamber and broadcasters participate in the questions for reporting but not recording. Then the Governor and newscasters go to the equipment area and he answers their questions either in joint or individual filming and recording sessions."

The spokesman observed that many questions evoke off-the-record background explanations of why such questions cannot be answered, and that filming and recording of a press conference would prevent this, particularly where interviewees do not have clearance controls exerted by the White House.

Emmet Crozier (standing) was the guest-author at an OPC Book Night discussion of his American Reporters on the Western Front, 1914-1918, at the OPC on Nov. 11. The panel included, l. to r., George Seldes, Paul Scott Mowrer, Bob Considine (the moderator), and Harry Hansen. With the exception of Mr. Considine, all the critics were World War I correspondents. Seated next to Mr. Hansen are Roy Howard and Jack Wheeler. Other World War I reporters attending were: Burnet Hershey, John T. Winterich, H.R. Baukhage, James P. Howe and Frederick Mordaunt Hall.

THESE OFF-BEAT OUTLETS CAN COVER THAT BEER AND PRETZEL TAB

by a Bulletin Correspondent

News is no longer the exclusive domain of the wire services and newspapers with correspondents overseas.

There is a limited but important market for spot news and features in the specialized mailer agencies and syndicates — and this market can mean extra beer and pretzel money.

These agencies stress the off-beat, the interpretive, the exclusive, the situationer which falls so often just outside the scope of pressurized daily filing to the United States.

The best known and largest of the mailer syndicates is North American Newspaper Alliance, which offers its material to more than 100 leading newspapers in the United States.

According to NANA assistant editor Sid Goldberg in New York, the syndicate "offers full news service for any page of the newspaper and welcomes submissions of news and feature stories which are exclusively prepared, timely and written for national newspaper readership."

Goldberg said NANA "is always willing to consider part-time correspondents overseas." The agency, which recently has employed such distinguished correspondents as Averell Harriman and Harry Truman, generally pays $25 per article and prefers news and feature articles of between 500 and 750 words.

Exceptions are made, however, according to Goldberg, for a series of special reports which can run to 1,000 words or more.

Another mailer service which accepts material of general political and economic scope is Worldwide Press Service, which, according to editor Mrs. Vivian Fletcher, aims its articles at the editorial sections of newspapers both in the United States and abroad.

Mrs. Fletcher said Worldwide stresses "analytical pieces, backgrounders, interpretives—not spot coverage." Contributions to her news syndicate, she said, usually—but not always—occupy an "honored position" on editorial pages and this constitutes a useful byline for any foreign correspondent.

Worldwide has 25 regular correspondents in key areas of the world, according to Mrs. Fletcher—many of them members of the Overseas Press Club. Those areas from which Worldwide can use more contributions are the Philippines, Japan, the Arab Middle East, Russia and some sections of South America.

Average contributions to Worldwide are 700 words. Payments start at $25 and often go higher.

In addition to NANA and Worldwide, there are other mailer services which accept free lance contributions from overseas. They include Religious News Service, Science Service, Women's News Service and the Jewish Telegraphic Agency.

These services are interested in spot news articles and exclusive news and feature stories — articles which can be batted out and sent off — sometimes in a matter of minutes.

The general fees for these range from $5 to $50.

The Jewish Telegraphic Agency, which is interested in any news of Jewish interest or events relating to Israel, has its own stringers overseas. But it will accept material on a free lance basis if none is forthcoming from a regular stringer.

Should you happen on a new transistor device, a brand new plastic, or a rocket trip to the moon in the making, and you can buttress the story with scientific detail and accuracy, send the piece to Science Service of Washington, D.C.

Science Service editor Watson Davis says: "Our requirements are rigorous and demand authentication but we're glad to look at any contributions." Davis said Science Service seldom uses articles of more than 500 words—most often shorter than that. Payments range from $5 for squibs to $20 for 500-word contributions.

The foreign correspondent's wife too, can get in on the deal. Women's News Service of New York will be happy to hear from her. Says editor Elmer Roessner:

"We want features tied in with breaking news. We don't want stories of women for example, who make a name in sculpting. Our stories generally run 35 to 500 words but we are always looking for the story that will break the rules — 2,000 words long."

Roessner said many wives of correspondents already send him material and that more stringers are needed in Spain, Portugal, the Scandinavian countries, Latin America and the Arab States.

Women's News Service, according to Roessner, "is not limited to the women's pages of newspapers. In addition Women's News Service 'can always use shorts and brighteners of between 50 and 200 words."

Payments are between $20 and $25 — just enough to cover that special pair of "inexpensive" ear-rings milady happened to see in the shop window across the way from the hotel.

For news and features pertaining to religious events, there is Religious News Service of New York.

RNS accepts spot news and exclusive short articles and distributes news of "all faiths, including ethical culture." The syndicate is not affiliated with any denomination and is interested in religious material from all over the world.

Here's where to send contributions to buy those ear-rings or the beer:

NANA and Women's News Service, 229 W. 43rd St.; Religious News Service, 43 W. 57th St.; Worldwide, 225 E. 46th St.; Jewish Telegraphic, 660 First Ave, all in New York City, and Science Service, 1719 N. St., Washington 6, D.C.

sa, Hong Kong, Laos, Viet Nam, and Thailand.

Trevor L. Christie, sub-chairman of the Outside Events committee detailed to handle the project, plans to contact news services to have staff reporters assigned to travel with the group.

A system of priorities has been set up by the committee to cover possible applications in excess of the number feasible.

Active members currently employed by news media have "A" priority, with associate members currently employed by news media as "B", active members in related pursuits "C", associate members in related pursuits "D", and affiliate and honorary members "E".

Travel will be by commercial airliner if a number up to 30 is booked, and by chartered plane if 60 are scheduled.

Plans for return, set for February 20, are not yet fixed between a Pacific or transatlantic routing.

Allard Lowenstein, Sherman Bull and Emory Bundy making a tape recording with leaders of the Nama people in the middle of the desert. Natives are forbidden to talk to whites in S. West Africa and complete press censorship is enforced.

UNDERCOVER - S.W. AFRICA

Southwest Africa is one of the few "forbidden" areas on to-day's world map. Nevertheless, OPC last Tuesday got an authoritative undercover report on this territory, including tape-recorded interviews with Herero and Nama chiefs.

Defying the Verwoerd regime, three young Americans managed to penetrate the S.W. region (which the United Nations considers a trustee territory, but South Africa insists on annexing). They emerged with the first documented report, including photographs, on police state conditions there — and presented their evidence to the U.N. Fourth Committee, which has spent most of last month debating the question.

Speakers were Allard Lowenstein, former staff aide to Senator Humphrey, Sherman Bull, Columbia medical student and Emory Bundy, Milbrook School teacher, who together managed the S.W. Africa trek in a Volkswagon.

Special additional guest was Hans Beukes, native of S.W. Africa who won a Norwegian Student Union scholarship — but had his passport lifted as he attempted to board ship from Capetown. Lowenstein's party met Beukes by accident and smuggled him out to Bechuanaland.

Background was presented by Dr. Ben Cohen; Ruth Hagy Brod, Chairman of Committee on Student and Youth Affairs presided; Vice President John Luter welcomed guests and Open House Chairman James Sheldon handled questions.

Ambassadors or 4th Committee delegates from eight countries turned up to honor the occasion. Included were Liberia, Ghana, Bolivia, India, Mexico, Norway, Indonesia and Poland.

LEVINE TO TALK ON MIND OF SOVIET MAN TO-DAY

Isaac Don Levine, a founder-member of OPC, will be guest at an Open House program Tuesday, Nov. 24, to discuss the changing ideology of the Soviet Union.

Levine, author of a new book, The Mind of an Assassin — The Man Who Killed Trotsky, is one of the acknowledged authorities on Sovietism. He will relate the possible "rehabilitation" of Trotsky to other changes in communist thinking.

Participating in the program will be a panel including Leon Dennen, Scripps-Howard correspondent, author Max Eastman, Boris Shub of Radio Liberty, and others.

TV NEWS HONEST, SMITH ASSERTS

"Reporting and analyzing the news, among other areas of radio and TV, have been kept as clean as a hound's tooth," Howard K. Smith, CBS news commentator, declared in a radio reply to Rep. Oren Harris' charge that "all television is under challenge as a result of the quiz show revelations."

"Any shootings seen on TV news, like those from Castro's Cuba recently, are genuine shootings not conducive to imitation. Questions which our news analysts address themselves frequently don't even have answers, fixed or otherwise."
